The husky bunch of purchasing clerks of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company administered a defeat to the motive power boys Thursday evening at Byrd Park by the score of 14 to 5. The score is large, though the game was interesting from start to finish. It was clearly seen from the start that the boys from the motive power department were no match for those buyers. Witt Hix, aided and abetted by timely hitting and base running on the part of his colleagues, simply had the motive power boys at his mercy throughout the entire contest. Score:

Startling Discovery That "Murder Apartments" Had Been Entered Thursday Night.

LETTER MAY BEAR ON MYSTERY Father of Woman Now Under Arrest

and Mrs. Angel Herself Decline to Say Anything, but Will Explain at [Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

Stamford, Conn., June 27 .- Further complications were added to-day to the mystery which surrounds the sensational death of Councilman Waldo R. Ballou outside the door of the apartments of Mrs. Helen Blondell Angel. now under arrest pending investigation of the crime.

Foremost in the developments of the day was the startling discovery "that the murder apartment" had been entered some time Thursday night by a mysterious visitor. The police have been unable to determine whether or not anything was taken, but misplaced papers on top of a safe and an open window leading to a rear porch fur-nish unmistakable evidence of an intruder, despite the vigilance of the guards.

Further, it was rumored about the offices of Homer S. Cummings, State's attorney, that one of the letters found in the Angel apartment contained a request by an unknown "Charlie G." for permission to visit Mrs. Angel on Tuesday night, the night of Ballou's death, and the information that the writer would "have to stay over night." It was impossible to verify the date of It was impossible to verify the date of the letter at the prosecutor's office, but no one connected with the case would consent to deny that Tuesday was the

Another unusual circumstance which resulted in redoubled vigilance on the part of police, was the result of information furnished Chief Brennan by a reporter, who overheard a conference between Mrs. Angel and an unidentified friend. She pleaded with her friend to "get them out wight away and do fied friend. She pleaded with her friend to "get them out right away and destroy them." It is believed by the police that she referred to some evidence of a possible incriminating nature which had been overlooked in the search of the studio.

The fourth important development to-day was the statement of Frederick Lane a restaurateur, who saw Ballou in the station in company with a stranger.

It is thought the stranger may be able to throw much light on events preceding Ballou's death.

It was also established to-day that Ballou did not buy the whiskey flask found in his pocket after his death, so that it must have been either given him or placed in his pocket by another person. The liquor dealer who sold it declares he sells such bottles chiefly to women, and that he has frequently sold liquor which found its way to the Angel apartment.

Upon his return to see a throat specialist. He hopes that that doctor will take a more optimistic view of his condition than did Dr. Lambert. But whatever the physicians say of the possible consequences, he is determined, he said, to go on with the campaign in a limited way.

Another decision which Colonel Roosevelt reached was to stop the steady procession of visitors here. He was told that his constant interviews with political leaders from all parts with political leaders from all parts

The change in the ex-President's plans came after an examination made last night by Dr. Alexander Lambert, of New York. He urged the Colonel to give up his trip to Pittsburgh, to make no speeches during the campaign and, as far as possible, to give up everything

Dr. Lambert explained, the Colonel said, that it would require a long period to shake off the effects of the malaria, and that if this were not accomplished the disease might become so securely fastened upon him that he would never recover his full strength.
